

Dear families,

As we've continued to follow the latest coronavirus developments, we wanted to update you on the steps we're taking to keep our centers safe and healthy.

To start, we've created a coronavirus resource for you with our latest guidance, and we'll keep this updated regularly.

Another step we're taking is extra precaution to protect our classrooms for our children and teachers. At KinderCare, we see our classrooms as safe and clean sanctuaries for children to learn and grow. To help ensure we're protecting these spaces, we're taking the extra step of asking all our families to limit the amount of time they spend in classrooms.

We want you and your child to continue to have the best possible pick-up and drop-off experiences, including great conversations with teachers. Whenever they can, our teachers will meet you at the classroom entryway for pick-up and drop-off. And if you are in the classroom, we're asking for your help to keep your visit as brief as possible, not join in activities and be careful not to touch too many surfaces in the room. We're also constantly cleaning our classrooms, but your help in keeping them as safe and clean as possible is appreciated.

We also wanted to assure you that we're supporting our teachers and staff by providing them with ongoing information and guidance so they can keep themselves and their families safe. We're encouraging anyone who is sick to stay home and are limiting classroom access to key center staff and teachers only.

If you have any additional questions or concerns, your Center Director and staff are always available to help. Thank you for your partnership in ensuring the safety and wellbeing of our children, families and staff.
