More ways to help families access financial support

Employer-Sponsored Tuition Benefit

Families should ask their HR representative about their employer's benefits or reach out to their center director for a list of participating organizations.

Department of Children and Family Services

If you know a foster parent or legal guardian, ask them to reach out to their caseworker or center director to learn how they can access subsidized care through their local Department of Children and Family Services.

Non-Profit Organizations

We also accept financial assistance from churches, United Way, or other non-profit organizations. Families receiving third-party funding should tell their center director so it can be applied to their account.

We partner with state and local agencies to offer tuition subsidies where we can. Whether families are looking for full-time or part-time care, we're in their neighborhood. Let's work together to make sure children get high-quality care at a price families can afford.

Government-funded tuition

Federal, state, or local governments or non-profit organizations grant subsidized tuition funds for child care and education costs. Subsidy qualifications are given to families based on criteria such as income eligibility based on family size, participation in vocational training, receiving other government aid, or serving as foster or adoptive parents.
